III – READING COMPREHENSION :

Directions : Read the passage and then choose the one best answer, (A), (B), (C), or (D), to each question. Write your answer in the blank. Answer all questions following a passage on the basis of what is stated or implied in the passage.

A relatively new feature of radio broadcasts in the United States is the call – in therapy shows, in which callers get the opportunity to air problems, however intimate, while the hosts offer them free, and immediate advice. They started, like so many other self-help psychology ideas, in California in the early 1970's.

But now they have spread to many other parts of the country and enjoy considerable popularity. This phenomenon certainly does not please all psychologists and the shows have become a matter of some concern to their professional association, the APA.

Present APA guidelines merely prohibit psychologists from diagnosing problems, or from offering psychotherapy on the radio, while the earlier ones had prohibited all giving of advice outside the traditional therapist-patient relationship. This prohibition fails to satisfy many psychologists. Some consider all giving of psychological advice over the radio totally unacceptable, but there are others who believe there should be even more of it.

The formers are typified by a Hastings Center psychiatrist, who describes the activity as « disgusting ». On one occasion, he backed up his view by walking out of a radio program when the host insisted he answer listeners' calls. But radio therapy hosts who are mostly attractive, youngish and qualified women, are fully capable of backing up theirs, and do so charmingly and effectively, as might be expected from professionals combining psychological expertise with entertainment know-how.

- b) That psychologists do not diagnose problems or offer psychotherapy on the radio
- c) That not all psychologists are pleased
- d) That is a matter of some concern to the APA

4 - The former (line 15) refers to

- a) psychologists who object to call-in therapy shows
- b) psychologists who advocate more advice-giving over the radio
- c) the APA's present prohibitions
- d) dispensing psychological advice
